BUCKSHOT HALTS FLEEING MAN

INDIANA CAR WRECKED AND BURNED WHEN SUPPOSED CAR THIEF ATTEMPTS GET AWAY

A charge of buckshot halted a fleeing auto thief southeast of Tinley Park Wednesday morning. It was about 10 o'clock when Chas. Vogt, and neighboring farmers while working in their fields were at first startled to see a big Buick Sedan careening down the highway from Homewood westward bound at about a sixty mile per hour pace and as the driver got near the sharp curve in the highway near to the Vogt farm he applied the four wheel brakes and the car was seen to leap in the air and turn over in the deep ditch.

Immediately there was a puff of smoke and the report of an explosion and the driver was seen crawling from the wreckage and run thru a field toward the John Henke farm and this aroused the suspicion of Mr. Vogt and the other farmers who had witnessed the affair and a call was sent to Henry Bruggemann at Tinley Park advising him of the affair. Mr. Bruggemann, J. C. Funk, Hans Vick and several other Tinley Park men drove out to the Vogt farm and when told the fleeing man had headed toward the John Henke farm they went there and were told by Mrs. Henke that the man had come in the farmyard and was trying to head for the barn but when he saw the women he ran east in a field. The Tinley Park men borrowed a shotgun and followed the fleeing stranger. At last they got within talking distance of him and commanded him to halt, but he started to run faster whereupon a charge of buckshot was fired in this direction after which he halted and threw up his hands in surrender. When he was searched no gun was found on him.

He was taken back to the Vogt place and just about then motorcycle cop Elmer Keuch and another motor cop from Homewood came on the scene and said they had seen the stranger who appeared to be a foreigner at Homewood and because his actions were rather suspicious they started questioning him about the new Buick 7 passenger sedan he was driving and he lit out in a hurry. The cops had a baby Overland and were not able to keep up with the powerful Buick.

All these actions made it appear that the car had been stolen. The stranger was asked where he got the car and he said at Crown Point and when the wreckage of the car was searched an Indiana license plate was found. The stranger was then placed under arrest and taken to Chicago Heights.

F. Bosold, Former Mokena Pastor Is Stricken

Rev. F. Bosold, former pastor of the St. John Evangelical church at Mokena and of late pastor of the Evangelical church at Mannheim, Ill., was stricken with a stroke of paralysis last Thursday night and died at the Evangelical Deaconess Hospital in Chicago Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters and one son.

Mrs. Ingerson, one Time Resident of Mokena Is Dead

Mrs. Emma Bechstein of Mokena received a telegram the past week telling of the death of Mrs. Kate Ingerson at Avoca, Iowa, formerly Mrs. Thomas McCarthy of Mokena. Funeral services were held at Avoca Sunday.

Kansas Woman Seeks Missing Frankfort Kindred

The editor of the News-Bulletin has just received a letter from a Mrs. Rose E. Robinson of 601 North street, Iola, Kansas asking him to help her find some long lost cousins, descendants of Jake Leffler who was a resident of Frankfort about forty years ago. Mrs. Robinson writes that her cousins have married since she last heard from them years ago so she does not know their names now. Mrs. Robinson in speaking of the cause that has started this search for her lost relatives says:

"Our home paper, The Iola Daily Register, printed pictures of the storm damage at Frankfort, Ill., taken by the NEA service. One of the pictures was that of Main St., of Frankfort, Ill., reduced now to only a pile of twisted debris and desolation following the ruin and death that visited the town during the terrific tornado of March 18.

"I have cousins residing there, descendants of Jake Leffler. I am the youngest daughter of Henry Leffler, a brother to Jacob Leffler. They have married since I last heard from them years ago, so I do not know their names. I am anxious to get information about them from anyone, trusting their lives were spared."

From this letter it would appear that Mrs. Robinson has got the two towns confused and means West Frankfort, Ill., instead of Frankfort, Will County, Ill., altho the Leffler families both did reside in Frankfort township (Will Co.) some 40 years. If anyone does remember the married names and the places of residence of the parties being sought they will confer a great favor by writing to Mrs. Robinson at the address above given and acquainting her with the facts.

Mrs. Geo. Gilman of New Lenox Dies Suddenly

Mrs. George Gilman, a resident of New Lenox for 27 years, died at her home in the village Friday morning following a brief illness. She had attended the meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the M.E. church at the home of Mrs. Edward Francis Wednesday afternoon and on her way home she complained of feeling dizzy and had to be assisted home. A physician was called and found she had suffered a paralytic stroke. She lapsed into unconsciousness from which she never awoke.

Carrie Cutler Gilman was born in Chicago Feb. 7, 1859. When five years old she came with her parents to Homer Township. Here the family attended the famous old Hadley church for many years until its location was later changed to Marley.

On April 17, 1889 she was united in marriage with George Gilman. Of this union two daughters were born. After residing in Homer for some time, the Gilman family moved to New Lenox and resided here for 27 years.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the late home to the New Lenox M. E. church, Rev. Mr. Frey officiating assisted by Rev. A. L. Brown of Marley. Burial in Hadley cemetery.

Bonfire Gets Beyond Control; Destroys House

While Adam Heusner was engaged in cleaning up the yard on premises he owns 2 miles southwest of Frankfort, Monday afternoon, he started a bonfire. The wind was blowing pretty strong from the south and before Mr. Heusner was aware of it the flames had been swept under a vacant house he had just recently repaired, and in a short time the building was afire. When Mr. Heusner saw the flames were beyond his control he ran to a neighboring farm and had them call the Frankfort fire department but for some reason they were not able to get central at Frankfort and when they at last did get them the fire had gained such rapid headway that by the time the chemical could get there the house had burned down. The loss was a total one.

Mokena Medicine Co., Has Fire Loss

The Don Hall family of Mokena operating the Hall Medicine Co. had a rather exciting experience at Rockdale last Thursday afternoon. They had been showing in that town for a week and were using a large tent for their headquarters. Mrs. Hall, Sr., had been in the tent preparing a meal and had just stepped in the yard when she saw the top of the tent was on fire. She called Mr. Hall's attention to it and both began working to save things in the burning tent but as it was they only could save very little and Mrs. Hall suffered bad burns on her neck and hands. In addition to the goods burnt $115 in cash which was in some clothes, also burned. The fire happened in broad daylight and had some rather mysterious features so it is thought the tent was set on fire by some miscreant.

Mokena Organizes Base Ball Team

Mokena is going to have a real baseball team this summer as a new ball team has been organized the past week. It is said the lineup is an exceptionally strong one and a series of real hot games are assured. The first game is to be played at the honor farm at Joliet the latter part of the month.

Local games are to be played on the Scheik diamond which has been rented for the season. The diamond is to be scraped this week so as to be in good shape for coming games. Other neighboring teams wishing to book games can do so by writing to Arthur Benson, Mokena or calling Mokena No. 8 in the evening.

Hot Time In The City of the Dead

Tuesday night Fire Marshall Herman Schweser and members of the Mokena fire department burned over the old abandoned cemetery south of the Bowman Dairy plant. The old burial plot was overgrown with a mass of weeds last summer and this with the dry leaves made it a fire menace to adjoining property.

The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters, Miss Delia Gillman and Mrs. Wm. (Anna) Fitzer both of New Lenox, three grand children, one sister, Mrs. Mrs. Chas. Peck of Joliet, three brothers, Charles Cutler of Marley, John Cutler of Plainwell, Mich., and Frank Cutler of Iowa.

Some Facts About The Tinley Park Community Club

To The Editor of the NEWS-BULLETIN.
Dear Sir:-

I note in your last issue a couple of statements about the community organization now in process of formation at Tinley Park which will bear correction.

First: You state that they bought the old school house for $560. The exact price is $530.

Second: It would appear from your article that Mr. Rueter promised to give the association the choice of one lot out of three. He really promised the choice of three lots out of the whole sub-division excepting those in the blocks along the cement high way. A very generous and much more liberal offer.

Besides these the committee has others under consideration.

Will you kindly make these corrections and also inform the public that the present organization is working out a plan to best organize the present members, together with all other interested residents of this community, into a permanent club at some later date. They desire to make this association a truly representative one and one which will be a credit to our community.

To this end everybody is invited to give the Community Idea some of their earnest consideration.

What a live community club can do for a community, we will be glad to tell, if you will grant us some space in your future issues.

Yours for a Better Place to Live In A. O. Foskett, Chairman.

The NEWS-BULLETIN is a firm believer in Community organizations such as you have started and we are mighty glad that Tinley Park can see the hand writing on the wall, that the small communities' life is thru mutual organization. This paper is only too glad to help in any way possible and will be glad to have its space made use of.

Yours for Service,
The Editor.

Hard Road Issues Wins In Frankfort

The Frankfort town election held Tuesday was somewhat enlivened by a vote on a hard road issue. The proposition carried there being 175 votes in favor of it and 38 against.

The regular town ticket was elected without any contest. The successful candidates are: for justices of the peace, Frank J. Kohlhen, Willard C. Owen; for constables, William D. Knippel and George Aschenbrenner; for school trustee, Jacob P. Bauch.

Mrs. Albert Cappel of Mokena Dies In Joliet Hospital

Mrs. Albert Cappel (nee Clara Yunker) died at the St. Joseph hospital, Joliet Thursday morning at 2 o'clock. She recently underwent an operation for the removal of a goitre and pneumonia set in a short time after the operation.

The deceased is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Yunker of Mokena. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, three sons, four sisters, Mrs. V.H. Scheer, Tinley Park, Mrs. Wm. Keuch, Mrs. Chas. Erickson of Mokena, Mrs. Fred Hinspeter, Frankfort, six brothers, William, Christ, John, George and Fred Yunker of Orland and Henry Yunker of N. D.

Property Owners Wonder Why Alley Com. Failed to Meet

Last Saturday evening property owners along Niethammer street were made the victims of what appears to have been an April fool joke. During the week W. C. Schmuhl, Wm. Semmler, Barney Hostert, John Horrace and Jacob Knapp had received notices from Karl E. Krapp, the village clerk to meet the members of the street and alley committee at the Barenz street corner but when the delegation of property owners arrived the committee was not there and failed to show up at all. The puzzled property owners are still wondering what the joke was all about.

200 Attend Big Demonstration

Fully 200 persons attended the big paint and washer demonstration held at the Mokena Hardware Company's store Saturday night. A feature of the demonstration was a guessing contest as to how many kernels of corn "Hungry Hank" a single comb Rhode Island Red Rooster from the Marti Bros., poultry farm of Mokena would eat and the guesses were many and varied, but in the meantime "Hungry Hank" managed to stow away 205 kernels of corn. The nearest correct guess was made by Mary Eddy of Alpine who guessed 210 kernels. She was awarded a wash machine for her effort.

Geo. P. Letts Is In Race for Mayor of Frankfort

The Frankfort village election to be held, Tuesday, April 21st gives promise of developing into a lively skirmish, the bone of contention appearing to center on the office of mayor. George P. Letts has been named as the candidate for this office by the Independent forces in opposition to Max F. Haass the present mayor who is seeking re-election on the regular ticket. No opposition has been registered against the aldermanic candidates on the regular ticket.

Hot Election At Mokena April 21st

The Mokena village election to be held Tuesday, April 21st is to be a battle royal from present indications. There are two tickets in the field as follows: Village ticket, for mayor, Geo. J. Hacker; for village trustees, Aug. Hentsch, E. P. Krapp, Wm. C. Schmuhl.

The Peoples ticket has the following lineup: for village trustees, Harvey Reab, Herman Schweser, W. R. Lynk.

Special autos have been hired for election day to call for the voters and take them to the polls. It is proposed to get every voter out.

Orland Home Is Threatened by Fire As Stove Blows Up

The O'Laughlin home at Orland was the scene of an oil stove explosion last Thursday morning. The family was engaged in preparing breakfast and when the oil stove was lit about 7:30 o'clock there was a sudden explosion and the burning stove was hurled in the yard by Mr. O'Laughlin before the kitchen caught fire. A leak is said to have caused the explosion. The Orland fire department responded, but the fire was out when they arrived.

Two Tickets In Field at Orland

Orland voters are all set for the big village election to be held on April 21st. There are two tickets in the field with a possible third. Mayor Louis Ratschke whose term expires is not in the race for re-election. The candidates as chosen by the various parties are as follows: Republican for mayor, Henry Waje; for village trustees, Geo. M. Steinhagen, William Jacobson, Robert Hughes. By Petition ticket, for mayor, W. R. Schusler, Sr., for village trustees, Ralph Jennings, Edgar Cooper, George Cox. Non Partisan ticket for police magistrate Sherman S. Knox.

Lesson for April 12

THE CRIPPLE AT THE BEAUTIFUL GATE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the Lord that health thee."—Ex. 15:26.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Lame Man.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Care of a Cripple.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Care of a Cripple and Its Results.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Church's Ministry to Body and Soul.

The indications are that some months had elapsed since Pentecost. The believers were being taught by the apostles who were showing their credentials by their mighty works (Acts 2:43).

1. The Lame Man Healed (v. 1-11).

1. The Occasion (v. 1).
Peter and John were going to the house of worship. They were friends who were mutual complements—each having that which the other lacked. This fellowship was according to the Lord's own arrangement and was most fitting. They were going up to Jerusalem to worship, though they knew full well the corruption of Judaism.

2. The Place (v. 2).

It was at the gate which leads from the outer to the inner court of the temple. It was called beautiful because of its magnificent bronze doors. This man was placed at the entrance to the place of worship because when a man comes closest to God he also comes closest to his fellowmen.

3. The Man (vv. 2-3).

This beggar was infirm from his birth. He was a familiar figure, known by the people for years. When he saw Peter and John he asked alms.

4. The Method (vv. 4-8).

(1) Gained the Man's Attention (v. 4). Peter and John commanded him to look on them. The sinner's attention must be secured before Christ can heal him. Having secured his attention they gave him more than he asked or expected. He asked for money and got healing.

(2) Peter Commanded Him in the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise up and walk (v. 6). This was the very thing he was unable to do for so many years. Was not this mocking his very impotency? No! No! for it was in the name of Jesus. With the command went the ability to do.

(3) Peter Took Him by the Right Hand (v. 7). This act was meant to give impetus to his faith, not strength to his ankles.

5. The Man's Response (v. 8).

Strength came to his feet and ankle bones at once. He stood; he walked; he leaped and shouted praises to God. He thoroughly advertised the miracle. He ascribed the honor to God for his healing, and walked into the house of God.

6. The Effect (vv. 9-11).

The people were filled with wonder and amazement. The multitude ran together to see this remarkable thing. There was no question as to the genuineness of the miracle for this man had been a familiar figure for many years. It was evident that something supernatural had occurred.

(1) The helpless beggar had to be carried to the temple gate. Men and women out of Christ are spiritually helpless. We should bring sinners to Christ.

(2) Taking him by the hand shows the manner of Christian help. Ministers of Christ may not have silver or gold, but have something infinitely better to give.

II. Peter Witnessed of Jesus Before the Multitude (vv. 12-20).

This miracle focused the attention of the people upon Peter and John. Peter immediately turned their attention from himself to Christ. Peter seized the opportunity to present Christ to the people who had assembled. He told them that it was by faith in Jesus Christ whom the God of their fathers had glorified, whom they had delivered up and denied before Pilate when he desired to set Him free, and had desired a murderer to be granted to them instead. He showed that the disciples were also witnesses that God had raised Jesus from the dead, and charged home upon them their awful guilt; for they had denied the Holy one and chosen Barabbas, a murderer. Instead of Christ, and even killed the Prince of Life. Despite their crime he appealed to them to repent (v. 19). Since they had committed this awful crime in ignorance, God would pardon their sin if they would repent, and he assured them that they should yet enjoy refreshing seasons from the Lord when God would send back Jesus Christ to earth to consummate the work of redemption.

Your Conscience

Remember this: that your conscience is not a law—no; God and reason made the law, and He placed conscience within you to determine—Sterne.

God made the earth to supply human needs. Constantly we are proving it to be a treasure-chest. We have but to lift the lid and help ourselves.—Evangelical Tidings.

CHAPMAN, BANDIT, TO DIE ON JUNE 25

King of Outlaws Found Guilty of Murder of Police Officer.

Hartford, Conn.—The colorful life of Gerald Chapman, vivid in spectacular misdeeds which earned for him a reputation as the country's most dangerous criminal, was ordered forfeited by a Connecticut jury.

He was sentenced to be hanged a few minutes after midnight next June 25 for the murder of Patrolman James Skelly last October 12 in New Britain.

Motion-picture spectators had for the last week hissed pictures of Walter E. Shean, the Springfield (Mass.) advertising man who first accused Chapman of murder. These same crowds applauded when Chapman's picture was thrown on the screen.

Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, said that he would recommend to the court a long prison term for the Springfield man, who is expected to plead guilty to a robbery charge.

Shean, when captured near Davidson & Leventhal's New Britain department store on Sunday morning, October 12 last, told the police that Chapman had been his partner in looting the store safes. Shean said Chapman was the crackman who had shot a path to freedom, killing Skelly.

Chapman did not flinch at the reading of the verdict, "guilty as charged." Nor did he gaze at the jurors.

Army Lieutenant Held for Killing Captain's Daughter

Manila.—Miss Andrew Burleigh was shot and killed here. Lieut. J. S. Thompson of the United States signal corps, with whom Miss Burleigh was driving toward her home in an automobile at the time of the shooting, drove with the body to Fort McKinley, where he surrendered to military authorities.

Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the shooting. Miss Burleigh had taken part in an amateur show at the Army and Navy club, Thompson objecting.

Miss Burleigh was a stepdaughter of Capt. H. P. Calmes of the United States general hospital, Manila.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook Goes to Prison for Fourteen Years

Fort Worth, Texas.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook said an revolver, but not good-bye to Fort Worth.

"I'll be back sometime," the physician-exploiter-whore—promoter convicted told his friends who gathered to bid him farewell as he boarded the train for Leavenworth prison.

His departure for the federal penitentiary, in which he is under sentence of fourteen years and nine months for fraudulent use of the mails, marked the end of another installment of Doc Cook's astounding career, and also terminated his sojourn of more than sixteen months in the Tarrant county jail.

3 Killed, 23 Hurt When Tornado Sweeps Miami

Miami, Fla.—Three persons were killed and twenty-three injured, three seriously, when a tornado struck the White Belt dairy, located a few miles west of Miami, Westwood inn, a roadhouse near Little River, and, continuing northeastward, demolished about seventy-five houses.

Three hundred to four hundred persons are homeless.

After crossing a canal at Hialeah, the great cloud lifted and then crashed down on the White Belt dairy, two miles away, completely demolishing six buildings and injuring a number of employees.

Federal Prisons Filled; Paroles to Bring Relief

Leavenworth, Kan.—Steps are under way to relieve congestion at the federal penitentiary here. The population is more than double that provided for in the original planning of the prison twenty-four years ago. A special parole board session at which 700 applications will be heard probably will begin in a few days. The number of prisoners now is 3,185, the highest in the history of the institution. The population has been growing steadily since the close of the war. In 1918 it was down to 1,600.

Bandits Rob Passengers on Car of Thousands

Maywood, Ill.—Thirty-five passengers and the motorman and conductor of a street car in Maywood were held up and robbed by four gunmen who took charge of the car for half a mile of its course through the town. The robbers escaped with loot totaling many thousands of dollars.

Son of Publisher Dies

Denver, Colo.—Kent Shaffer, son of John C. Shaffer, publisher of newspapers in Chicago, Denver, Indianapolis and other cities, died at his home in Los Angeles. His death was sudden, the result of a severe bronchial cold.

School Given $100,000

Nashville, Tenn.—The medical school of Vanderbilt university has received a gift of $100,000 from the Rockefeller foundation to develop the school of nursing.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

DO NOT FORGET YOUR VITAMINES

WE HAVE heard so much about vitamins that everybody knows, in a general way, that they are substances in food which are necessary for growth and health and that our food should be so varied and regulated that we will each of us get a sufficient amount of each one to keep us strong and well.

When McCollum began his feeding experiments on animals only three vitamins were known. It is now generally agreed among food authorities that there are at least five. They are called vitamins A, B, C, D, and X.

Vitamin A is found in milk and eggs, in fresh meat, especially in gland tissues, in animal fats and oils and in leafy vegetables. It is generally found dissolved in either animal or vegetable fat. It plays an important part in the growth of the young. Complete absence of it in food causes a peculiar disease of the eye called xerophthalmia, in which the conjunctiva or covering of the eyeball becomes hard and dry and white like the skin.

Vitamin B is found in the coat or bran of grains and seeds, in vegetables, fruits and animal foods. Its absence causes beri-beri in human beings, as among Chinese and Japanese fed entirely on polished rice. Without it, young animals cease to grow and finally die. In fowls, it causes a peculiar disease called polyneuritis.

Vitamin C is found in fruits, fresh vegetables especially raw potatoes and in fresh milk. Absence of this substance causes scurvy, formerly so common on sailing vessels on long voyages when the sailors were fed for months on salt meat and dry biscuits. Over a hundred years ago, it was found that lime juice, if taken regularly, would prevent or cure it, so the British shipping laws compelled all sailing vessels to carry lime juice and serve it to the sailors. As a result, these ships, in sailor slang, were called "lime juiceers." Orange juice, tomatoes, raw cabbages or potatoes, or fresh fruit of any kind are equally effective.

Vitamin D is very much like vitamin A, being found in cod liver oil, yolk of eggs, alfalfa and spinach.

Little is known about vitamin X. It is the "dark horse" as yet in this field.

While definite knowledge of these literally life giving substances in food is a matter of the last ten years, the diseases caused by the absence or insufficient amount of them have been known for centuries. The old Greeks had scurvy, although they didn't know what caused it.

The human body is a living machine. It needs living food to keep it healthy. See that you get every day something fresh, green and raw. The old proverb about an apple keeping the doctor away was the result of centuries of human experience.

OVERWORKING THE OLD HEART

IF YOU had a pump that had been working steadily and faithfully for fifty years, without ever missing a stroke or failing to do its work, you'd be pretty well satisfied to let it alone, wouldn't you?

You wouldn't expect it, after all those years of service, to do the work of a new machine and to pump four or five times its usual amount. You'd know if you did something would be apt to break.

The human heart, whatever poets may say about it, is just a pump. Steadily, regularly, from sixty to seventy times a minute, sixty minutes every hour, twenty-four hours every day, all the days of your life from birth until death, it goes on pumping, pumping.

Dilating and contracting with every beat, it forces the blood all over the body. As long as it works perfectly, you never know it's there.

But no machine is as strong, after fifty years' work as it was at ten or twenty. So no heart at fifty can stand what the heart can at twenty-five.

Julius Fleischmann, millionaire yeast king of Cincinnati, was a great lover of sports, especially outdoor games. He played polo and tennis and handball. All excellent games but strenuous. Mr. Fleischmann was fifty-two but in perfect health.

The other day he played an especially fast game of polo. When the game was over, he rode to the side lines and dismounted. Then, before any one could get to him, he dropped dead.

What happened? The doctors said "dilated heart." What made the heart dilate? Fifty-two years.

Polo and tennis and handball and football and basket ball are all splendid games—for young men. But they are too fast and call for too much heart strain to be safe amusements for men past their youth.

Golf and walking are safer and wiser. If you are past forty-five, no matter how strong and well you are, don't overstrain your heart. Keep it going at its usual gait. But don't run for street cars, don't lift heavy burdens, don't expect your faithful old pump to do the work of one twenty years younger.

"The Unfoldment"

6 reels

A drama of the miracle of love

Admission, 25 & 15 cents

ORLAND

Mr. and Mrs. Westerland and Miss Virginia Scott of Chicago were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. Betsy Austin.

Miss Ersel Kettering spent her vacation last week at the home of her aunt, Mrs. David Azate, returning on Monday to her school work at Jennings Seminary at Aurora. She will graduate in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gee and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Gee were guests at the Geo. Gee home last Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Collins and little daughter Doris, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayers Sunday.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES.

The picture "From the Manger to the Cross" was well attended last Friday evening and brought an inspiring message to all. The first of the weekly lecture pictures to be given every Friday evening will be "The Unfoldment," a drama of the miracle of love, on Friday April 17 at 8 P. M.

The devotional service last Sunday evening was in charge of the adult Bible class. Frank Sayers, president of the class, presided. Two reels of pictures portraying incidents in the life of Christ, entitled "The Dawn of Christianity," were shown and Mrs. Collins gave a short talk. Next Sunday evening there will be a musical picture, "The Lord's Prayer." The opening devotional service will be in charge of the young people.

Next Sunday morning there will be special Easter music by the choir and an Easter message by the pastor. There will also be a baptismal service for infants and any others desiring it, and the reception of new members into the church.

The Extra Naus club of Orland will conduct a spring dance in the club house at Palos Park on Saturday evening April 25th.

"IF WINTER COMES"

"If Winter Comes," based on the novel by A. S. M. Hutchinson, made its appearance on the screen at the Times Square Theatre in New York City. Quoted the New York City Evening Mail, "No novel which has appeared on the screen has been transferred so exactly as 'If Winter Comes.' Indeed it might be added that the story has been copied word for word. Not one incident germane to the whole has been eliminated and the result is truly remarkable."

Watching the tale unfold is like reading the book with living illustrations on the page opposite. You read of what took place and then see it happen. If some one were to result was most effective, intensely dramatic and beautiful, we would say that such a thing was impossible.

But this "impossible" has been achieved. When Mark Sabre and Nona are finally united and the spectators realized that the picture was over they looked about as if it were strange that they were in the theatre and it was time to leave. It can be safely said that the film left them stunned.

The film version of "If Winter Comes" can stand on its own feet. It is as good as the book and in all probability will prove to be better because of the vitality given it in the new medium.

The story of the lovable, whimsical Mark Sabre is known to the hundreds who have read of the

Orland Bankers

Weds Chi. Girl

George E. Gee, the genial cashier of the Orland State Bank rather surprised his many friends last Saturday when he took unto himself a wife.

The wedding, a very quiet affair took place at the Orland M. E. parsonage at 8:30 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Collins tying the nuptial knot. The only attendants were a sister of the bride, Miss Harriet Moore of Chicago. The ring ceremony was used.

The newlyweds have gone to housekeeping in a cozy home that Mr. Gee had in readiness for his bride in his subdivision west of the village on the concrete road. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gee wish them much happiness in which the News-Bulletin joins also.

Mrs. John Handorf, Sr., of Marley Dies

The community of Marley and surrounding towns were shocked Sunday when they learned of the death of Mrs. John Handorf Sr. She had been in good health and last Thursday was enjoying raking the lawn. It appeared she had contracted a cold flu setting in and died Sunday afternoon.

Mary J. Holm Handorf was born Dec. 19, 1853 in Kensington, Cook County, Ill. When about 4 years of age she moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Holm to Worth, Ill. She was confirmed in the Blue Island Lutheran church in 1873. On March 6, 1880 she was united in marriage with John Handorf. In 1884 they moved to a farm west of Marley, Ill., where they lived till 12 years ago when they retired from farming and moved in the village of Marley.

She is survived by her husband, 2 daughters, Mimmie at home and Mrs. Ida Lahmann of Marley, 2 sons, Carl of Lemont and John Jr. of Marley, one daughter, Mrs. Adna Lauffer passing away in 1919. 1 sister, Mrs. Pul Hampel of Worth and 2 brothers, Henry of Goodings Grove and Fred of Worth and 8 grandchildren. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the late home to Marley Community church, Rev. A. L. Brown and Rev. Henry Rust, a former pastor officiating. Burial took place in Hadley cemetery.

TINLEY PARK

Postmaster Andres of Tinley Park announces changes due on April 15 on Insurance, C. O. D., registry and money order fees and provisions for handling of parcels.

There will be new rates of postage on private mailing cards and second third and fourth class mail. Also fee for return of receipts on insure and registered mail.

Of all the changes, the one of greatest importance is the new provision for special handling of parcels, by means of which 4th class packages, through payment of a "special handling" charge of 25c, will be expedited in the same fashion as 1st class mail, in that it will be distributed and dispatched immediately upon receipt and will not be allowed to get into terminals and other points of delay. Shippers of merchandise will be instructed to prepare rubber stamps or labels reading "special handling" for use in connection with the new service. Until the service is completely established any arrangements of postage stamps totaling 25c will serve.

The new service provides for speeding up the parcels at the point of mailing and to destination. Special delivery after point of postoffice destination has been reached will be additional.

There will be no changes in the first class matter, sealed or unsealed, which is now 2c for each ounce of fraction. The single U. S. postal card will remain 1c, but the double U. S. post card will be increased to 2c. All private mailing or post card will be 2c, whether written or printed, instead of 1c as at present.

Transient newspapers and magazines in the 2nd class will carry a rate of 2c for each ounce of fraction to 8 ounces, instead of 1c for four ounces. Above 8 ounces, 4th class rates apply.

Hitherto there has been a flat charge of 10c for special delivery beginning April 15 the fee for any parcel up to 2 pounds is 10c; more than 2 pounds and up to ten, 15c, and more than 10 pounds to the maximum weight, 20c.

The registry fee up to a valuation of $50, now 10c, will be 15c. The rate will be 20c, as at present for valuation of from $50.01 to $100. Insured mail, for third and 4th class only, will be 5c, instead of 10c, and for first class, 10c, instead of 15c; and 8c instead of 5c for value not to exceed $25.

A new charge of 3c will be made for a return receipt for insured and registered mail.

Increase of 2c for each of the money order classifications will become effective.

BACHELORS GROVE LUTH. CHURCH.

The Modern Skyline

IN America's cities everywhere, towering high above the streets, are the "skyscrapers," monuments to industries, builders, and all whose thought and achievement enable hundreds or thousands to work and live comfortably under one roof.

These human hives, and the activity they shelter, are made possible by the telephone, with its cables and wires spreading from floor to floor and from room to room.

The messages they send and receive, now despatched so quickly and speedily in all directions, would require an army of messengers that could neither be mobilized nor directed.

Without such a service as the telephone for the transmission of spoken messages, America's monumental business architecture would not exist, and men would have to live and work close to the ground, instead of in the air.

WORTH

Worth has now received their fire engine which was ordered some time ago, from Perchs Bros., Kenosha, Wis., for $6500. This engine is equipped with the latest fire fighting devices.

Some people do not agree with the Village Dads for spending so large a sum for this improvement and protection, but our Official's ideas are to buy something worthwhile and we agree with them.

This engine will be ready for use when called for and the telephone numbers that will get it is, Worth 18-W-2, from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M., and 18-R-2 all day and night.

The driver of the engine will be Harold Ferrin and we know he is very capable of the job.

W. R. Schussler was elected Justice of the peace.

The Power Behind The Savings Dollar

By WILLIAM E. KNOX
President American Bankers Association

A recent compilation made by the Savings Bank Division of the American Bankers Association showed that

In the six years since the war our total savings deposits have risen from $11,600,000,000 to nearly $21,000,000,000, an increase of some $9,400,000,000. The total number of savings depositors is reported at about 38,900,000.

The full significance of this is realized only when we visualize savings deposits as meaning much more than merely dollars in the banks. They really mean an increase in the accumulated productive capital of the country, since money deposited in the banks as savings is promptly applied by the bankers in the purchase of securities by which plant, railroad and other industrial development is made possible. These figures mean, therefore, that the small savings of many millions of people, instead of being frittered away in the purchase of goods that are immediately consumed, which involves a destruction of capital, are gathered together and applied in the better utilization of capital through the upbuilding of industrial equipment. This means the preservation and perpetuation of the country's physical wealth and its application to the production of further wealth more easily and in larger volume, resulting in a higher standard of living for all classes in the country.

These tremendous savings figures indicate sound habits of thought and practice on the part of millions of people in their personal economic affairs. This is an asset of no small value in appraising our present business outlook. It is, in fact, one of the most promising elements in the situation today. It means that we not only have the resources for prosperity, but also enough common sense to make good use of them.

FORCING LOWER TAXES

Gerard B. Winston, Undersecretary of the Treasury in the American Bankers Association Journal says, "The burden of taxes must be lightened. Per capita Federal taxes rose from $32 in 1913 to $54 in 1920; then commenced to drop, and have been successively $45, $32, $28, $29 in the last four fiscal years. It is estimated that for the next fiscal year the figure will be about $27. With the states and municipalities the opposite tendency is disclosed. In 1918 their per capita tax was something over $20. In the next four years it rose to $27, $30, $36, $38, and later figures will undoubtedly show further increases."

He says of excessive death taxes that "examples have been cited of how the states and Federal government, under existing laws, can take more than 100 per cent of an estate. If Federal and state governments take more than the particular source of taxation can stand, it will ultimately destroy all revenue from that source. After a man has provided for the reasonable requirements of living, the impetus to further production is largely the desire to leave one's family well provided for. So long as the individual feels that he can pay the tax and still leave an estate to his family, he will increase his efforts; but a man will not seek to build up a large fortune just to have it taken away from his family at his death."

STORE CREDIT COSTS 26 PER CENT.

In a survey of 800 farms made by the North Carolina Experiment Station, it was found that over 40 per cent of the total credit needs for the farmer is for short term loans, either through the bank or through merchant advances. Only one-sixth of this amount comes from banks and the rest from stores or landlords. For store credit farmers are paying over 26 per cent interest, and only a little better than half of the farmers realized this fact. The bank rate of interest at the same time was only a trifle above 6 per cent. Practically all merchants would be delighted to go over to a cash basis.

The remedy lies in the production of more food and feed and in the discontinuance of shipping in hay and grain with their attendant high freight rates and dealers' profits. This means the establishment of better working relations between bankers and farmers, for there is great opportunity for educating the farmer along the line of bank credit.—Banker-Farmer.

UNDER NATURAL LAWS

Great changes are occurring in the agricultural situation. Gloom and gloom are giving way to renewed hope. We all rejoice that this is happening. It is being brought about through the immutable and inexorable natural laws. It is as difficult to legislate prosperity as to attempt by law to make folks honest. Agriculture in the last analysis operates under about the same basic laws as any other business.—P. B. Doty, Agricultural Commissioner, American Bankers Association.

Rock Island Buys

New Equipment

Announcement is made by the Rock Island Lines that this railroad has ordered the following equipment for delivery within the next few months to improve its freight service: 1,200 steel frame box cars; 400 drop bottom Gondola coal cars; 5 combination baggage and mail cars; 10 eight wheel switch engines the total weight of engine and tender of each being 385,000 pounds; 10 large freight locomotives, the total weight of each being 583,500.

The switch engines are the heaviest which this railroad has purchased and the freight engines will be used largely on the El Paso Division to handle the fast freight originating on the Pacific Coast.

The Rock Island also has ordered a 160-ton wrecking crane, which will be the most powerful crane on the road, and will lift a maximum load of 320,000 pounds.

In addition to the above equipment, plans are under way to rebuild 100 coal cars at the Armourdale car shops of the Rock Island.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the Hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it."—Mrs. J. A. JONES, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

Chapter VIII

By
Victor Rousseau

By the next morning there was no doubt that victory had been won. There was color in Lancaster's face, a lightness in his step; and, best of all, he was psychically whole. The drug devil still clung to the nervous refuges of its physical domain, the hands still trembled, the man started at sudden sounds; but the shifty, furtive, lying spirit had taken its departure.

Joan only discovered afterward what Lancaster must have endured. The treatment had been more heroic than Joan had known, with her own limited experience, and the antidotes which she administered, under Lancaster's own directions, were purposefully limited, for fear of supplanting one habit with another.

Lancaster had gone through the worst of his ordeal; and yet certain features of his illness were puzzling to both of them. The symptoms of morphine poisoning, elusive and protean as they are, seemed in this case irreconcilable with those classically accepted. There was Lancaster's complete prostration on the morning when Joan discovered the nature of his illness. He told her afterward that he had been conscious all the time, but physically inert, as if paralyzed. That did not point to morphine poisoning. And a certain lethargy remained one of the last symptoms of the case.

The intimacy of the sick room, born of their struggle, had become the most natural thing to both of them. The passing of Myers had wrought an extraordinary change in the atmosphere of the institution. And somehow the news of Lancaster's recovery had spread into Millville. Joan inferred that even the country people had boycotted the institute, but now two mothers brought their babies to Lancaster, and it was amazing and delightful to Joan to see the doctor's transformation, his jolliness and tenderness toward the children.

"I'm using my respite," he said whimsically. "I want to get well to face my harder battle."

"It is no respite," answered Joan. "You are free now, Doctor Lancaster; it is only a habit of thought that holds you."

There ensued three wonderful days after the secretary's departure, always to remain clear in the girl's memory. They were three days of uninterrupted recovery. After the second no more morphine was given. The fight was won; there was no questioning that.

"I suppose you will have to return to Avonmouth soon," Joan suggested.

He turned a startled look on her. "Yes—soon," he said, and fell into a gloomy meditation from which she could not arouse him.

That afternoon a telephone message came from Thompson, a hill village, fifteen miles distant. A farm-hand had been crushed by a falling tree; would Lancaster come at once and see if anything could be done for him?

"Would you like to come with me?" asked the doctor.

"If I can be of help."

"Of course you can—the greatest help. I shall need you badly, perhaps to administer an anesthetic," he answered.

Lancaster telephoned to Jenkins for the buggy, and half an hour later they were driving along the country road into the heart of the mountains. They traveled for the most part in silence; Lancaster's thoughts were occupied with his prospective case, and Joan was content to sit quietly at his side and watch the changing panorama of the land she loved and knew so well. The road ascended continuously, until at last, when the sun was low down in the sky, they entered Thompson, a tiny settlement in the very heart of the mountain peaks.

It was a serious case, and the patient was already comatose. The tree had fallen across the chest, crushing it, and driving a rib into a lung. An immediate operation offered the only hope, and the doctor decided to perform it in the cabin.

Joan, having bundled out the family and the neighbors, administered the ether. She had never been greatly impressed by the legend of the skilled surgeon with the wonderful touch; her first operation at Avonmouth had seemed to her like a sort of glorified plumbing, and the leisurely manner of the surgeons had reduced the art to a science in her estimation. Now she revised her opinion as, seated at the patient's head, she watched Lancaster working within a compass of fractional inches, where a slip would have been deadly. His fingers, which had trembled as he held the reins, were as steady as the steel instruments he held, his deftness and precision were amazing; and when at last the operation was ended, and the patient's recovery announced as probable, she could not conceal her enthusiasm.

They were to remain at the cabin overnight in case of a change for the worse, returning to the institute in the morning. After a scrappy meal they had wandered to the end of the village, toward a patch of woodland that was encroaching on the tiny settlement. The long summer twilight still held the land, although the mountain tops were already vague and shadowy. They stood there, looking down toward the level country under them. "I think you are the most wonderful surgeon in the world," said Joan. "And you see I didn't faint this time," she added.

"Faint? Why should you faint?"

asked Lancaster, looking at her with a puzzled expression.

"You seemed to regard my weakness in the operating room as a sign of my incapacity," she replied, a little chagrined that he should have dismissed the matter from his mind.

Lancaster looked at her with that strange glance which seemed always designed to hide his thoughts. Then his face softened.

"Joan, do you know that I owe everything on earth to you—to you, my dear?" he asked.

And he took her in his arms and kissed her.

"That's what you mean to me," he said. "I can't lose you; I want you to fill the life that you have given back to me."

And at the touch of his lips on hers Joan knew that in truth she loved him; all that she had heard of the man's past, his dissolute life, the talk of Avonmouth, was forgotten. She only knew that she loved him, not with the wild passion of which she had heard, but with a quiet and abiding fondness, none the weaker for its qualities of calmness; and it was the most natural thing in the world that she, who had given him life again, should give her own life also to this wonderful, strong man who had risen above his wrongs and driven the besetting devils from him by valorous strength. Her heart was lifted up; serene and trustful she returned his kiss.

"I love you, too," she answered. "Nothing of the past shall ever come between us."

They were at the verge of the forest, upon a height that overlooked Millville and Lancaster, hill villages, but now outspread in the shadowy plain beneath them. A dozen counties could be dimly discerned from that spot by daylight. Far in the distance were the coastal lands, nearer the cultivated belt, nearer still the little farms, and the matchless mountains all about them. It was their home country—both of them were thinking that; the smell of the rich soil was in their nostrils, and in their hearts the sense of home.

"Joan, can a man begin to build up his life again at thirty-eight, after he has missed everything?" asked Lancaster, after a long silence.

"You have proved that he can," she answered. "But you have not missed everything, my dear. You are a very great man, and a man with a great work in the world. Many men have gone along the path you took, but few have found the strength to turn back as you have done."

"Joan, I want to tell you something. I was engaged to be married once—years ago. She ran away on the evening before our marriage day. It was the beginning of my downfall. I thought I loved her."

His face was haggard. Divining his distress, Joan slipped her hand into his.

"Joan, dearest," said Lancaster, after a pause, "I have often thought that some day I would tell you all the wretched story of the past. But I have been thinking differently today. I was entrapped by an unscrupulous man, who robbed me of everything that made life worth living. But there is nothing that would make me afraid to look my fellow men in the face. It is myself whom I have shamed and humiliated. Joan, I want to say nothing, not because I would keep anything from you, but because I want to start my life anew. I shall never go back to the institute."

"You mean, dear—?"

"Never. I shall not return tomorrow. I want you to come to the Southwest with me, Joan, my dear. We will drive across the hills to Carroll's and catch the through train there. I shall begin to live the new life you have given me. Will you leave everything for my sake, Joan? Is it too hard a request?"

"It is not too hard," she answered. "But it is not right for you."

"It is right for me to leave a living death behind me."

"No, dear. It is running away. You spoke to me of some harder fight to be fought."

"With nothing to win, Joan—nothing. When I leave here no human being will miss or regret me."

"There is your work at Avonmouth. There is the hospital which you have made famous throughout the United States. Your work is there, not in some obscure place where it would be of less use to the world and no example. Besides, consider that if you become famous again, as you must, you will be discovered. And one can never leave his past behind him. That follows everywhere."

"Yes, that is true," muttered Lancaster, staring out over the darkening hills. "Well, I leave it to you, my dear, but to go back to fight out a futile battle seems to me now something unendurable."

"You must go back to the institute, and then to Avonmouth, and meet your enemies, John," she said. "I shall be at your side. Nothing will make me afraid, or weaken my love for you."

His face twitched. "Not if I tell you things which prove me worthless of your love?" he asked. "Not if you find I am an outcast man who has deserved his misfortunes?"

She only smiled at him. "I shall not judge you by your words," she said, "nor yet by other men's opinions, but my knowledge of you."

"Then I shall tell you everything," he answered, drawing Joan's hand into his. "Everything, but not here. Here I shall keep the peace of the hills within my heart, and you."

So they strolled back toward the cabin, and Joan's drab-colored life was transmuted in this, her first love, to gold. She lived in her lover, she trusted wholly in him who had brought love to her, not like a conquering god, but in the simplest guise, making it the unfolding of her own loving nature. She gave her youth, her innocence as love's price, and thought the exchange her profit. There was never such peacefulness in any place as there that evening, and in Joan's heart was abounding peace likewise.

When they reached the cabin the patient was better. Lancaster spent the evening giving detailed instructions to the man's wife.

"I shall do my best to come again if I am needed," he said. "But I can't promise. I may be called to Avonmouth at any moment. Keep him quiet, for heaven's sake keep him absolutely motionless for a week, and then let him sit up if he wants to. And nothing to eat but the schedule I am making out for you."

Afterward Joan told Lancaster that she wished to stay for a few days to take care of the man. But Lancaster would not hear of it.

"These hill people never die," he said. "He'll be up and about before the week is over."

"But the diet?"

"They'll feed him on soda biscuits as soon as he's well enough to eat anything. Fortunately he won't be able to eat for a week, so he won't come to any harm. I shall send Jenkins over two or three times to report progress."

Joan's room was a tiny place under the eaves. She spent a sleepless, happy night there, thinking over the happiness that had come to her. It was strange and wonderful to lie awake under the same roof that sheltered Lancaster, and to reflect how soon their lives would flow together, calmly, in their own country. She could not have wished any happier fate in life.

With her limited experience, it seemed ideal that, after the years of stress in Avonmouth, she should be returning, almost to her own home, a wife. She had puzzled sometimes over Lancaster's long residences in the place that bore his name. But she dreamed of the time when he would give up his work at Avonmouth and retire to a new institute, a spacious home where they could fill their wards with the country people, where her life's vocation and her life's happiness would be united.

At last she fell asleep, and, when she awoke, Lancaster was tapping at her door.

"Time to get up, Joan!" he called cheerfully.

She sprang out of bed. "How is the patient?" she asked.

"Doing finely and wants to go to work," said Lancaster, laughing.

Joan dressed in a hurry and ran downstairs. Lancaster was waiting on the porch. She raised her face for his kiss, already natural to her, already the happy fulfillment of her innocent dreams of love. Then, arm in arm, they strolled out into the sunlight.

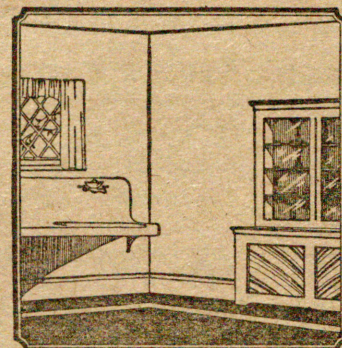

The glorious light lay on every hill. In that light all the shadows of the past seemed to shrivel away.

"We are going back to the institute this morning, Joan," said Lancaster. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Franklin Set Style

When Eighteenth-century Paris was still wearing the picturesque three-cornered hat Benjamin Franklin came to represent the new republic of the United States, wearing on his head a queer thing derived from the steeple crowns of the Puritan Pilgrim fathers. Paris copied it and turned it into the cylinder which Christendom has worn ever since, says the Detroit News.

In the Eighteenth century when partisans of France and of Russia were fighting it out in Sweden the French faction wore hats, the Russians caps. The Middle ages, as a familiar ballad reminds us, knew a Pilgrim by his "cockle hat."

to do most of the rooms. When starting out I meant to try only two of the seven but things went so easily that I did them all in just the colors I have wished to have for so long. The tones are so pleasing and fresh that they brighten my whole house. I am sorry I put off doing this work for so long. I had thought it an expensive undertaking, but the cost was less than a dollar per room."

Giving evidence in a London police court, a policeman stated that the defendant stood outside a tailor's window challenging a dummy to come out and fight. The man pleaded that it was the dummy who first started it—London Punch.

Women, Why Suffer?

Quincy, Ill.—"I was relieved of feminine trouble, which had caused me to suffer with headache and other distressing feelings, by simply taking a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I have had no return of the trouble and I am glad to recommend this tonic to all women who suffer. I wish someone had told me about this remedy long before they did."—Mrs. Rose Davis, 525 S. 3rd St.

Goldfish Balk Robbers

Mrs. Mary Gagliana, 1216 Clark street, Pittsburgh, used her bowl of goldfish to foil a robbery, and did it successfully. Awakened by noises below during the night, she peered out of an upper window and saw two men trying to force their entrance through the kitchen door. The large bowl of goldfish standing nearby offered itself, and she dropped the bowl, fish and all, on the heads of the prowlers with the result that they fled hurriedly.

WLS SUPERPOWER STATION LOCATED AT CRETE, ILLINOIS.

Crete, Illinois, in Will county, has been selected as the site of the new super-power station to be erected soon by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, it has been announced by Edgar L. Bill, director of the station. The new station will replace the 500-watt equipment now in use by WLS.

The location of the station is considered by engineers ideal from every point of view. Embracing more than 4 acres of ground on an elevation just outside the southern city limits of Crete, it will be the most outlying station in the Chicago territory. An amplifier station is to be maintained at Harvey, Ill.

Work on the building to house the station will begin at once and it is hoped to have it ready for use in a few months. In addition to the 200-foot aerial towers, the station proper will be housed in the most modern quarters, provision further being made for additional units as may be required by advances in the science of broadcasting. Constant touch will be kept with the Chicago studios of the station by a system of remote control from Sherman Hotel very much along the lines used at present.

The new equipment to be used by WLS will be fully abreast of the latest developments in radio, according to Curtis D. Peck, engineer in charge of the station. Because of the increased power output of the new equipment, it will mean many more radio listeners to this station, and will also help programs by overriding static and spark telegraph interference. The frequency amplifier system will insure the holding to the same wave length at all times and under all conditions, and the use of capacity coupling will reduce the possibility of interference with other broadcasting stations.

To Guarantee

Used Fords

One of the most important steps yet undertaken to protect used car purchasers and at the same time place the handling of such cars on a more business like basis is the announcement by Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company that operating under a company plan Ford dealers will hereafter place a guarantee upon used Ford cars disposed of by them.

The Ford Motor Company is the first large automobile concern to take direct steps in the matter of used cars. Inasmuch as there are about a many Fords in operation in the country as all other makes combined, it is apparent that the action of the Ford Motor Company will exert a wide influence on the marketing of used cars and in improving conditions generally in that phase of automobile business.

"Every used car represents so much unused transportation and is of value to someone," Mr. Ford said in his statement regarding the plan. "The Ford dealer through his position an intimate knowledge of the car certainly is the best judge as to the value of this transportation the best to determine a price on the mileage the car may yet be expected to deliver—That's his business. With this advantage the Ford dealer is prepared to give his used car customers, benefits not likely to be obtained elsewhere.

"If re-conditioning is necessary he has the work done by trained Ford mechanics using improved equipment and genuine Ford parts, and with these economies and advantages he is able to offer the used car to the purchaser at low cost and with a guarantee covering its mechanical fitness."

The plan becomes effective at once and places a guarantee on used Ford cars purchased from auth-

Those guiding the destinies of radio in America should have these as their objectives:

A radio in every home. The constant improvement of radio programs.

The one thing that may curb the American public's enthusiasm in radio is the abuse of broadcasting. It is interesting to note already the influence of radio upon American tastes.

Jazz has its place in American musical tastes. It is the only distinctively American music we have. It is today by far the most popular of all forms of music in the United States. But there are good jazz orchestras and bad ones. And bad ones which consist of a "toodle-oo" and a "thump-thump" are the ones that decrease interest in the better ones.

But jazz can be overdone and has been. That is why the American public is asking for better music. It is getting really interested in the better known of the grand operas, the standard overtures and the classics of years gone by. It is a good sign. One need never fear about the future of a country which is genuinely interested in good music. And good music does not mean the elimination of jazz.

Stations must exercise judgment in the amount of jazz that is broadcast.

And the exercise of judgment is the one thing needed to direct right ly the destinies of radio.

Authorized Ford dealers thereby insuring proper mechanical operation under ordinary driving conditions.

In assuming the direction and supervision of this plan to be carried out by its dealer organization, the Ford Motor Company feels that it is embracing an opportunity to be of greater service to those who purchase used Ford cars.
